Company policy on environmental protection

A sense of responsibility is part of our corporate identity – the same applies when it comes to sustainability. That's why we always keep sustainability in mind: when developing new products, when planning projects with customers, when producing or installing construction elements and when delivering services. We always think of a building in terms of its entire life cycle: What's more, we focus on scalable, sustainable solutions to achieve the best possible positive effect.

“ We take responsibility for the sustainability of our actions in the commercial, ecological and social domain.”

GOLDBECK company principles

As a family company, we think in generations. We understand that we can protect the future for us and our children if we use resources carefully. That's why we continuously and holistically analyse and improve our environmental performance and our processes. While doing so, we place great importance on measurable results. We minimise our consumption of resources and prevent pollution using our successful environmental management system.

“ We promote energy-efficient, environmentally friendly construction and are aware of the impact we have on society.”

GOLDBECK company principles

We are committed to continuously improving our environmental protection and performance, beyond just the official requirements, laws and regulations. To achieve this, we use innovative methods and modern technologies, and foster the exchange of scientific knowledge. We combine functionality, economic efficiency and sustainability into one harmonious whole.

Successful environmental protection is only possible when everyone in the company does their bit. That's why we involve every employee in the process and encourage them to act with consideration for the environment in every part of the company. We are transparent in our actions and invite others into an open and factual dialogue. We are always open to suggestions for how we could improve.

“ We act responsibly towards our colleagues and business partners, as well as towards society and the environment.”

GOLDBECK company principles

We consider the above-mentioned principles in every activity the company undertakes. We continuously assess the environmental impact of our actions. And, we regularly review our goals and adapt them to the latest findings.
